

DCCC Ad "Rubberstamp Republicans" – Chabot

(Sound of silverware and flatware)

Wife: Hi, Hon, 'want some coffee?

(crumpling newspaper)

Husband: Okay. Boy, it really steams me to read what's going on in Congress. Do they even live in the real world?

Wife: What's the problem now?

Husband: This new budget bill they just passed - it cuts 14 billion in federal student aid.

Wife: Ouch!

Husband: And this comes after they passed a bill that gave 14 billion in handouts to the big energy companies.

Wife: Wow, like the oil companies need a handout!

Husband: Yeah, and here's the worst part-

Wife: What?

Husband: Our congressman, Steve Chabot, voted for both of those bills-

Wife: Ow!

Husband: In fact he cast the deciding vote to pass that crazy budget.

Wife: But why?

Husband: 'Must be a party thing. 'Says here that Chabot votes with President Bush more than four out of every five times.

Wife: 'Sounds more like a rubberstamp than a

Congressman.

Husband: ‘Reminds me of an old saying.

Wife: Oh yeah?

Husband: ‘When two people agree all the time, one of ‘em is not necessary.’

Wife: Hey, now there’s a way to cut the budget.
